Breeders' Cup Q & A with...

Paul Matties Jr. (NHC 17 champion)

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: At the fall meet at Santa Anita, the main track has had a more of an inside tilt than recent meets, and speed has done well, particularly in the routes. The most important thing to remember at SA is that outside speed horses (stalkers/pressing the leader two-wide) always do well, especially in the one-turn (sprint) races. The new turf course has been even faster than the old one and it's one that horses get over well. Because of that, the jockeys should be pressing the issue more, but I'm suspect if that's going to happen. If they aren't aggressive enough, speed will do good just because of physics, not because of a bias.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: The 6 1/2 furlong down the hill races at Santa Anita are a novelty. I'm not thrilled that it's included in the pick 6, but it is a race where you can definitely win a lot betting a little. This year's race doesn't seem like one where experience over the course is completely necessary, but it may be another reason to back off on your opinion a bit. The most telling thing to me in this year's race is the lack of real turf sprint speed, so even though a horse like Pure Sensation is a little distance compromised, he may have an advantage.

The main threats are all the cutback horses: Obviously, Om, A Lot and Celestine. They may be the best four horses anyway, and they all look like good candidates to like the hill.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: The Juvenile Turf is a problem for me because the horses who I think are the best two horses have terrible posts. Good Samaritan and Rodaini are in 11 and 12 but both look like they could be freaks. Good Samaritan has a clear figure edge and his workout might be the best work of all the Breeder's Cup races. Rodaini has lost one race and if you haven't watched the trip Rodaini had in the race he lost, you should find the replay.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: You throw him out. He was one of my favorite horses to watch last year, but you can't like his chances in this race off one poor effort this year. The interesting thing about that race is I think Dortmund is vulnerable in that field too, especially having to chase Runhappy for part of it. Races where you can beat the two favorites are huge opportunities, especially when you have a reliable key like Gun Runner.

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: Well, Dortmund and Songbird are both 6/5 ML on Friday and both are bad value. It wouldn't be a total shock if either won, because neither is in a bad situation, but they aren't as dominant as their odds will be. On Saturday, Tepin and Lady Eli are great stories, but both are unlikely winners and worth taking a shot against.

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: After the preliminary handicapping, there's three horses I really like, two that will be double digits for sure. In the Sprint, Limousine Liberal should be in that stalking position I was talking about, and he improved a lot with blinkers last time. He came out of that race training like a monster. I like now horses in the Sprint and he looks like the now horse. Tourist in the Mile had a horrendous trip over a course he doesn't love last time. He has run fast enough to win this and should love the new Santa Anita turf, and with his draw, he should sit perfect in behind a good pace. Finally, in the Turf, Ectot looks loose. The Euros are nice horses but none of them are great. Looking for Ectot to wire them again.

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: There's never been a Classic where the majority of the field has no shot to win. Only the three obvious horses (California Chrome, Arrogate and Frosted) can win. The interesting thing is "the other two" have run faster than California Chrome is going to run on Saturday, but California Chrome is the most likely to run his A race. Odds will probably dictate for me and I will use all three in the horizontals and lock the race up.

2016 Breeders' Cup: A Speed Figure Perspective

By Craig Milkowski, Chief Figure Maker for TimeformUS

Speed figures should be an important tool in each handicapper's toolbox. While blind adherence to the numbers won't get you very far, they can do a good job at identifying contenders in most races. The table below illustrates the average, median, and top winning TimeformUS Speed Figure over the last six years for each Breeders' Cup race---the post synthetic surface era.

Breeders' Cup TimeformUS Winning Speed Figures, 2010-2015
	Avg	Med	Max	Max Winner
Juvenile Turf	106	108	109	George Vancouver
Dirt Mile	124	126	130	Caleb's Posse
Juvenile Fillies Turf	108	108	117	Stephanie's Kitten
Distaff	123	124	129	Royal Delta
Juvenile Fillies	110	110	116	Songbird
Filly and Mare Turf	122	122	126	Dayatthespa / Stephanie's Kitten
Sprint	127	128	130	Amazombie / WorkAll Week
Turf Sprint	118	117	123	Mongolian Saturday
Juvenile	112	109	123	Hansen / Uncle Mo
Turf	127	128	130	St Nicholas Abbey
Filly and Mare Sprint	117	117	127	Groupie Doll
Mile	129	130	133	Tepin
Classic	129	129	136	American Pharoah

Keeping those numbers in mind, the following list shows some top three morning line choices that appear vulnerable and longshots that can be considered contenders looking at each's last two races. Juveniles are typically still improving and shouldn't be penalized too much for not running to the race norms yet but should be within hailing distance.

Juvenile Turf:

Favorable Outcome (15-1) ran a 106 TimeformUS Speed Figure last out, albeit on dirt. If he takes to turf for master turf trainer Chad Brown he could be a big factor.

Wellabled (15-1) is similar with a 107 figure last time, but that did come on Woodbine's Tapeta surface. He is very fast early and will certainly be a pace factor.

Dirt Mile:

Runhappy (3-1) has tried two turns twice in his career. The results have not been pretty with a bad loss as a 3-year-old and only a 112 speed figure in his return race of 2016. He should be a big play against.

Juvenile Fillies Turf

Spain Burg (5-1) has won four of five starts in France but comes in light on Timeform ratings with a high of only 95. She is getting Lasix for her US debut but doesn't appear to be a bleeder given her record.

New Money Honey (10-1) enters the race with the second best last race TimeformUS Speed Figure, a 110 earned winning the G3 Miss Grillo stakes for the aforementioned Chad Brown.

Distaff

Songbird (6-5) is obviously a special filly, but her lifetime best of 125 last out in the G1 Cotillion just nips the median figure for this race of 124 and she faces two horses proven faster in Stellar Wind and Beholder. It is possible she is capable of better numbers given the ease of some of her wins, but as the favorite that is a shaky proposition.

Juvenile Fillies

With a median winning TimeformUS Speed Figure of 110, this group looks particularly weak this year. None of the top five morning line choices have run higher than a 102. With Honors (10-1) took to dirt well when runner up in the G1 Chandelier at Santa Anita and could improve off that number even further in this spot as a possible upsetter.

Filly and Mare Turf

Not much to see here---favorite Stephanie's Kitten is one of the most likely winners on the card. None of the longer priced horses look particularly appealing either.

Sprint

Two of the favorites, Lord Nelson (5-2) and Drefong (7-2), have not even approached the median winning figure of 128 for this race. Drefong is a 3-year-old so perhaps there is more in the tank, but like Songbird a short price seems shaky at best.

Mind Your Biscuits (20-1) is also light on the speed figure side, but is also a three year old at a much more attractive price. His last four races have all come against a slow pace (blue pace figures in TimeformUS PPs) and it is very possible he can run faster than he has shown with the right set up.

Turf Sprint

Om (12-1) has run very good speed figures for this race, draws well on the outside, and horses turning back from mile races do well on this unique course.

Juvenile

This is a strong edition of this race with five of the horses having already run faster than the 109 median for this race. Not really a long shot or a favorite, but undefeated Three Rules (8-1) looks like an immediate toss based on TimeformUS Speed Figures despite having won his five races by a total of 31 lengths. He simply isn't fast enough for this group.

Turf

The favorites look up to the task and the longer prices in too deep, should be a formful race.

Filly and Mare Sprint

Morning line favorite Haveyougoneaway (3-1) has won seven of her last nine with two seconds, but has yet to reach the 117 median for this race in any of those starts. Wonder Again (30-1) ran a 119 at Saratoga in only her second start as a four year old before faltering in the G2 Gallant Bloom at Belmont in the mud. If she reverts back to her fast track form she will be prominent in this race.

Mile

The Mile has been the strongest race over the last six years with an average winning TimeformUS Speed Figure of 129 and a median of 130. Alice Springs (4-1) ships in from Europe having won three of her last four, including a pair of G1s. But, her best Timeform rating is just a 122. That number is well short of what several in this field have produced.

Photo Call (15-1) freaked in her last race when turning back from much longer races to a one mile race at Keeneland. If she is able to clear Midnight Storm and be alone up front, she could do it once again.

Classic

All of the top three morning line choices (California Chrome, Arrogate, Frosted) have run fast enough to win this race while none of the longshots look particularly interesting from a speed figure perspective.

Good luck and enjoy the best weekend in thoroughbred racing!

About the author- Craig Milkowski is the chief figure maker for TimeformUS. We had more in-depth Q&As with Craig in our September 2015 and our September 2013 issues.

Craig's Breeders' Cup Q & A

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: I always handicap as if the track is fair and expect a fair track this weekend. Biased tracks have more value, in my opinion, as horses run back than they do trying to figure them out during a race card.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: I think horses without experience can win the sprint, but I am 1000% against all the horses that typically run in the 5 and 5.5 furlong sprints. I prefer "hill experienced" horses and horses cutting back from mile races.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: Lancaster Bomber. He drew well on the inside, gets Lasix, and 104 Timeform rating in last makes him a strong contender.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: Toss.

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: Songbird. She is a fabulous filly but has never faced the kind of battle she will from Beholder and Stellar Wind.

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: Mind Your Biscuits in the Sprint. He keeps catching slow paced races which don't flatter his closing style, but shouldn't have that problem on Saturday.

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: Arrogate. I don't think his Travers was a fluke, and Baffert had no problem going straight to the Classic from the Travers last year...but I'll be rooting for Chrome.

Breeders' Cup Q & A with...

Charlie Davis, HANA board member & third-place finisher in NHC 17

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: Santa Anita has been very fair in my opinion so far this meet. That being said, I totally expect them to soup the track up for the feature races. I'd expect it to get gradually more speed favoring as they maintain the track between races.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: In non-BC races, experience down the hill is huge. In the BC races, not quite as much in my opinion. I will certainly look closer at horses that have run over the course, but it's not a deal killer for me. This is a race where I'll look closely at the jockeys who've had success on the course.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: Without giving too much away since I am playing in the BCBC this year. I will NOT be playing Oscar Performance. Total play against for me and I will be rooting for a big price. No Lasix is a big bet against for me almost always.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: Purely based on the trainer, or lack thereof, total toss. I happen to like other horses in that race anyway so it made my decision really easy.

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: I'll be playing against several, including in the Juvenile Turf, Juvenile Filly Turf, and several more.

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: Can't really answer this one till I see the odds. I don't make betting decisions until I have a firm grasp on where the odds will end up.

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: I'm a fan of Chrome, but doubt the value will be there to bet. Definitely no Arrogate for me as I don't think he hits the board.

Candice Hare, International Racing Coordinator for TVG

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: I'm not. Dirt racing is always going to favor frontrunners. That's the nature of the game, but the Santa Anita main track has been very fair all year long and I don't expect that to change now.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: Experience down the hill is always a plus, but there aren't really any down the hill specialists this year which leave for a wide open race. Horses who can take bends very well tend to be suited by this course because they can cut the corner onto the home straight really well. Milers cutting back also tend to be suited, which is the case for several horses in this year's field.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: Wellabled intrigues me as a horse who on breeding should appreciate the added distance. He has legitimate sprinting speed and his Arlington-Washington Futurity performance over seven furlongs was extremely encouraging. If he can relax on or near the lead, he's a big chance.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: Toss

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: Songbird

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: Stellar Wind

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: Arrogate

Breeders' Cup Saturday is one of the few days each year that has the following three things going for it:

1. More often than not - contention in the races runs deep. In almost every race - many horses have a realistic chance to win given the right trip.
2. Horseplayers from all over the world are handicapping and betting. There's an enormous amount of public attention on these races that (sadly) isn't there on a typical Saturday.
3. When you combine items 1 and 2 above you get overlay potential.

Thus, the above table, where with no handicapping whatsoever - just blindly betting any horse at 6-1 or higher in the odds to win - has been flat bet profitable.

For these stats I compiled a Breeders' Cup Only database for both Fri and Sat spanning calendar years 2009-2015.

From there, I broke the database out into the following different categories:

- a. GRADE 1 STAKES - ON THE DIRT - SAT ONLY
- b. GRADE 1 STAKES - ON THE TURF - SAT ONLY
- c. GRADE 1 STAKES - DIRT AND TURF COMBINED - SAT ONLY
- d. GRADE 1 STAKES - DIRT AND TURF COMBINED - SAT ONLY
- e. ON THE DIRT - BOTH DAYS FRI AND SAT
- f. ON THE TURF - BOTH DAYS FRI AND SAT
- g. DIRT AND TURF COMBINED - FRI and SAT

From there, within each of the above categories, you'll find tables where I've further broken the data out by sub-categories such as by HDW Run Style, Q Speed Points, Track Where Last Raced, Rider sorted by wins, Trainer sorted by wins, and Sire sorted by wins.

I've long maintained that perhaps the best way to use stats like these isn't to chase areas that are positive ROI in past samples. You see, a lot of players do that. And when their money lands on those areas - those areas have a way of magically reverting back to the mean. My own preferred way of using stats like these is using them to find horses to fade. If you study the stats in the tables closely - there are some great bet-againsts to be had on this year's Saturday Breeders' Cup card.

- These statistics including running styles, speed points, rider, trainer and sire are separated by Dirt, Turf and also by day (Friday's and Saturday's). They can all be found starting on page 28.
- Various other Santa Anita statistics can be found in the main part of the magazine.

Breeders' Cup Q & A with...

Jessica Chapel from Railbird

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: Anticipating a speed bias is a great way to skew handicapping any card, so I try to start from a neutral position that supposes fair play, especially for the Breeders' Cup, where — with a few exceptions — contenders are well matched and entered in races that make sense. Then, it's all about the projected pace and who has an advantage in each race. What I do anticipate is the horses who can run on the front or stalk will have an edge in most of the Breeders' Cup pace scenarios, and that edge is more about class than anything going on with the track surface.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: The downhill turf course makes the Turf Sprint one of the most exciting Breeders' Cup races and a fun one to bet. You can see on the board that there's money coming in as unfamiliar with its dog leg and dirt crossover as most of the starters are. I wouldn't say experience is key, but it helps, and not just with horses — jockeys too. Is part of winning on the downhill course mental? Maybe. If you're not used to the slant and the right turn, it must feel a little wild. First pass handicapping this year, and I'm leaning toward Obviously — he's cutting back, he has a win and two seconds on the course (admittedly, in 2012-13), he's still fast, and he has Flavien Prat, who's won 16 races from 79 starts on the downhill turf this year.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: I see a lot of upside in Good Samaritan. Among other things, he won his debut at Saratoga, beating favored Ticonderoga at odds of 9-1, and both of them came back to win their next starts. That Saratoga maiden race also included J.S. Choice, who finished fourth, then won his next race, and last out finished second to the Juvenile Turf morning line favorite Oscar Performance in the Pilgrim.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: He's run one race this year and finished fourth. Toss him.

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: The Arc winner, simply because I believe Found wasn't meant for the Breeders' Cup this year and her form is likely to be on the downswing. Coolmore and O'Brien were ready to put her away for the year after her Champion Stakes second.

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: Beholder, no question. Three losses, two to Stellar Wind, have dinged her reputation this year. But the Zenyatta was an even race, the Pacific Classic was one of the best fields of older horses assembled this year, her figures haven't dropped off, and she has a target in Songbird to stalk. I love everything about the likely Distaff scenario and how she's approaching the race.

Jessica thinks that Beholder will add a third Breeders' Cup to her collection this year - Eclipse Sportswire / Breeders' Cup Photos ©

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: I won't try to be clever: California Chrome. He's proven himself the best six times this year. If you're going by Beyer Speed Figures, he ran the same figure (113) winning the Pacific Classic that he did running third in the 2014 Breeders' Cup Classic, and seemingly without putting in a hard effort. I think he has more.

Tackling the Turf Mile

SANTA ANITA RACE 11 BREEDERS' CUP TURF MILE

This is one of the more fun, and potentially more profitable betting races on the Saturday card. Horses at short prices should have the edge in pace, speed, form and class; no one in the field seems to be head and shoulders above the rest. Here is a short breakdown on each runner and also included is some of the OptixEQ data used for this analysis. Full Breeders' Cup data package is still available on Optixeq.com, Friday-Sunday (all tracks included) for only $50.

POST POSITION ORDER:

#1 WHAT A VIEW will be forced to use his tactical speed early and will be pressed into a legit pace. Coming into the race off a decent prep, he is still light on class (B GRADE) and with a less than ideal pace scenario (large circle) makes him an outsider in this spot.

#2 ALICE SPRINGS post position does her no favors since she does not like to run between horses (SCARED). She will get a ground-saving trip and even with one of the world's best jockeys will need everything to unfold perfectly to allow her to get to the clear in the lane; does not present much value.

#3 SPECTRE 3-year old filly has run well (B GRADE) in her last two vs open and older closing ground against the race flow. She is a bit soft on figures compared to the rest of the field, and not one of the more likely winners, but would not consider her a toss and an acceptable use underneath at a big price.

#4 MISS TEMPLE CITY coming into the mile, her ideal distance, off a B+ PERFECT trip last out at Keeneland. This will be her toughest test. She is classy and in good form cannot be dismissed completely especially if over looked in wagering.

#5 TOURIST is making his third appearance in the Mile. First year, EX trip - you can draw a line through; and last year he lacked a finish after getting a great pocket trip. He will prefer getting over this firm course and has the ability to win, though proven to be an overall unreliable sort. Another note, he is a good-looking flashy horse in morning, nothing new this year.

#6 PHOTO CALL ran away with the race FINALLY returning to the mile and taking the race to her competition. The mile distance suits her perfectly, the race pace dynamics and competition do not. Should they try the same tactics she will likely to be compromised early, and if allowed to stalk will be at the mercy of a similar trip with others that have more finish.

#7 DUTCH CONNECTION is an interesting player in this spot. His last race was not the most encouraging (RANK), finishing last of the field. However, I am keying off his race last year at Keeneland in the Shadwell Turf Mile, a BTL (better than looked) race, making a couple of moves and showing GRIT. American racing might be more to his liking and a legit player off a move forward as a now 4-year old.

#8 TEPIN the returning champ is a contender. I do not see her as that much more likely than some of the other entrants; no value. See HANA Q&A for more details.

#9 IRONICUS ran a winning race (B+) last out at Keeneland, he is major player in the Mile and will take a lot of action and rightfully so. The concern with him is his deep-closing style, which is always a liability, especially paired with a short price. This combination can break your heart.

#10 LIMATO is one of the more "fancied" European shippers of this year's Breeders Cup. Some believe he was a cinch for the Turf Sprint, the connections decided on the classier spot entering him in the Mile. He certainly figures just a matter of at what price makes him a play, or play against.

#11 RING WEEKEND has the look of a must-use for exotic/underneath, and bit below the main contenders on the win end. His best career race did come over this track and distance and has a favorable pace scenario, and significant rider change. There are more than enough things to like at a big price.

#12 HIT IT A BOMB has yet to make that big move forward as a 3-year old. His last race (C grade, NO KEEP) does not give much confidence. The re-addition of Lasix does not look to be enough assistance to take on this group.

#13 MIDNIGHT STORM does not look to get cute from the outside post, he will do what he does best take to the front and fight like hell. He has one way of going and one way to win, even on his best he's still a tic below.

#14 COUGAR MOUNTAIN is another sneaky shipper capable to get involved at a big price. So far, he has underperformed in G1 stakes, and will need his best and then some to get the win here. He seems to favor the left-handed configuration; the course could be to his liking to make that necessary improvement along with Lasix addition. Trip will be paramount, look for him to drop back and over to the rail at the break and needs to get the ride of a lifetime from Miss O'Brien.

Emily's Breeders' Cup Q & A

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: I try to not be influenced on factors that are out my control for pre-handicapping such as bias. As far as a speed bias at Santa Anita, it has been known to happen, but we will not know until race day, or more likely not until the conclusion of the race day. I think it is very important to adjust and react your handicapping when it comes to the wagering based on those real time factors such as bias, and/or post-time odds.

If the track does seem to produce a bias, or a speed-favoring profile, I would go back and look at the races ASAP and see if the horse that won made sense with the manner the race was run. Often we can miss things in our handicapping and point the bias finger. I would recommend to put in the work coming up with pace scenarios (there is often more than one), and use the available pace tools such as OptixPlot to help confirm opinions on how a race could unfold.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: The Downhill Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique, and I believe in regular handicapping principles that experience down the hill is a strength. However, this year, and just looking at the main body of the field, only four of the runners have hillside racing experience, and most of that experience is very limited. Ambitious Brew and Holy Lute are the only runners with current reliable course form. Obviously has not run down the hill since 2013, and Undrafted only has one start in the 2014 Breeders' Cup Turf Sprint when he ran a sneaky good race. The experience edge this year might come in the form of rider experience.

With that limited course experience, watching replays and getting perspective on a horses running ability will be paramount for this race. Good race watchers, OptixNotes users, and OptixGrid filters are great tools to help handicap aspects to this race that are not clear in the printed pp's. There is not a real clear cut morning line favorite and those listed towards the top have some question marks; this makes for a great betting race.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: The Juvenile Turf is certainly worth spreading in and looking for overlays, but I feel that there are a handful of contenders that stand above the rest. Of those contenders

I am leaning more towards a horse with North American racing experience, and did not include either of the O'Brien runners. Good Samaritan, the morning line favorite, is legit. Both of his races earned a B+ OptixGrade. His gallop over the course earlier this week was exceptional, looked great and just an incredible mover. He will be used heavy; again this does not look like a race for a multi-race single. For value, I would look at Ticonderoga at what should be double digits odds based on his quirky nature despite the natural talent. I would love to see Harbour Master (30-1) draw into the race, a must use/bet should he miraculously draw in.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: The Dirt Mile potentially shapes up to be a good betting race on Friday. Dortmund looks solid and I expect top efforts from Vyjack and Gun Runner. As for Runhappy, if he is anywhere near the 4-1 morning line he is an easy toss. The OptixPlot has him in an unfavorable position from pace standpoint. He has many other questions surrounding his ability to get distance and questionable current form with inexperienced connections. Any chance no one reads this and they make him less than 4-1?

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: There are a few favorites in this year's Breeders' Cup I think are worth betting against, particularly California Chrome and Tepin. Tepin looks like a play-against favorite based on a few solid factors. Her OptixPlot position is not ideal for this race shape and her plot position is unfavorable in the sense she has looked stronger and better positioned in the past, which has contributed to her success. Her current form and speed figures are decent, but nothing that stands out above some of the other contenders in the race, creating an underlay. Her trainer has commented in the past on her distaste for warm weather, and if it is a warm/hot California day, that could work against her. Honorable mention: Lady Eli.

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: As I mentioned in an earlier answer, the Turf Sprint looks like a great betting race and the horse I am most excited to bet is Celestine. I think she will be overlooked off that last race, and many handicappers will think running in the Turf Sprint is an afterthought since she "could not beat Tepin". I think the Sprint and this downhill course will fit her well. Her one turn races, which I'm including the mile races at Belmont, have been her most effective and proven versatility. The jockey change to Joel Rosario is a positive after the TACTICS keyword in her last start, and a rider change that signals good intent. She looks to be very live and likely to be overlooked by the public.

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

California Chrome is one of the favorites I am looking to take a stand against, again based on a few factors. I am on record that his last race was a taxing effort and likely took something out of him. From a trip/pace standpoint, he will not have an easy trip and there are couple scenarios that make him vulnerable. On OptixGrid I used the filter to sort OptixFigs for distance and he does not have an edge over others in this field. That said, I do not have a super strong opinion in this race in terms of a bet.

Arrogate looks an absolute talent he has been pointing to this race and will be ready to throw down his best. I hesitate taking a short price, but will not toss. Multi-race wagers I will be spread and if I decide to bet the race it will come down to who is the most appealing on the board.

Cangamble's analysis of the Turf Mile

The Breeders' Cup Turf Mile is full of one-mile specialists and a few early speed horses this year. It should set up for a chaotic finish, especially due to the field size. Trip will matter, and the best horse may lose the race due to trouble. With all that in mind, don't shy away from using long shots in all your tickets this year. Here is a rundown of the field:

1. What A View: This horse loves the Santa Anita turf course where he puts his undefeated five-for-five record (four-for-four at today's distance) on the line. This is his second race off a long layoff so expect improvement. The one post isn't generally kind but due to his early speed prowess, he could take advantage of the post by saving ground while sitting third until the real running starts. A decent horse to throw into your exotics ticket.

2. Alice Springs: A very decent 3-year-old filly. Her numbers are a bit inferior to the top horses in this race, and the fact she has lost 10 times in 15 starts in filly races, this race should be too big a challenge for her.

3. Spectre: A lightly-raced 3-year-old filly who has competed pretty well against the boys lately. She doesn't have the numbers to win, and the eight-week layoff may make it difficult for her to hit the board.

4. Miss Temple City: Beat the boys last time in the Shadwell at today's distance. She had a great trip. The fact that she hasn't raced twice within a month this year until now makes her a huge bounce candidate.

5. Tourist: He didn't have a great trip in the Shadwell and wasn't beaten by all that much. Santa Anita miles favor the middle post positions, and he is four-for-ten at a mile, and eight-for-ten in the money. Second race off a layoff but because he ran so well, it is hard to say whether he'll improve. Definitely a horse that could win with a great trip based on his last race. A must use in exotic tickets.

6. Photo Call: The mare who upset Tepin by running as far as she could as fast as she could and ending up with a huge number as well. She is going to most likely try the same tactics in The Mile. She is expected to bounce, and with Limato in the race, expect her gas to run out much earlier.

7. Dutch Call: Winless at a mile in Europe. Eight weeks off. Can't say he won't get third or fourth with a tremendous trip as his numbers are OK, but this one is tough to take.

8. Tepin: The returning champion. Loves the distance. Can obviously beat the boys. She has the numbers, and looks like an improved horse from last year. From a bounce standpoint, she has triple top which means there is good shot she'll regress. She will likely be overbet, and she will be asked to come from fourth or fifth this time, which means she'll need to out kick some really good closers. She could win, but value-wise it might be better to tread lightly, even in exotics.

9. Ironicus: Came on with a 22-second last quarter run in the Shadwell. Second race off a layoff, expect his number to improve from his last. This one needs a clean trip, and if he gets it, considering the expected pace of the race, is a logical candidate to win. Might be too obvious. A possible negative besides needing a good trip is the question as to why has he raced only three times this year. He also might be overbet. At 5-1 or better, there is some value.

10. Limato: Is expected to either run Photo Call in the ground of chase her. Either way, expect this one to be spent down the lane. Has really good numbers going shorter, but his mile race wasn't anything special according to the charts.

11. Ring Weekend: Raced wide in the slow-paced Shadwell and excusably didn't kick in during the final eighth. Could have bounced a bit off his previous victory. With a better trip and speed to run at, he is good long shot play.

12. Hit It A Bomb: He won the Juvenile Turf Mile a year ago, coming from last on a yielding Keeneland turf course to cap off an undefeated 2-year-old campaign. Lightly-raced again this year, he is winless, and that might be due to him not showing any improvement since last October. Would really be a bomb this year.

13. Midnight Storm: Four-for-six at a mile on the lawn. He is coming into this race off a layoff after winning three in-a-row. In five races with 10 or more horses in the race, he has yet to hit the board. His need to be up close, coupled with the 13 post, will mean he will have to come up with a tremendous effort to stay on. Doesn't look good enough to overcome the negatives.

HORSEPLAYERSBET.COM

14. Cougar Mountain: Another one that seems to need to be up close with a bad post. His number from two races ago at today's distance fits with these. Throw that race out, and he doesn't have much of a chance. Can't throw out completely because of the odds.

Here is the tri/super ticket. Play at your own risk: 9.11 with 1.5.8.9.11 with 1.5.8.9.11.14 with 1.5.8.9.11.14

Ten Things to Watch for at the Breeders' Cup

By Jerod Dinkin

1. The absurdly high percentage of the overall Breeders' Cup broadcast spent discussing how the European horses are acclimating to the warmer weather and recovering from the long plane flight as if they're retired British tourists that just flew in from Heathrow (in coach without the extra legroom).
2. Elizabeth Banks.
3. The incredible precision of the NBCSN/NBC race simulator where experts tell us precisely how the race will play out, meaning we don't actually have to watch any of the races live or spend nary a second handicapping.
4. The inevitable whining of the New York-based turf writing intelligentsia about how the Cup shouldn't be on the West Coast. You know, where the weather is freaking perfect.
5. The Filly & Mare Sprint is at seven furlongs while the Sprint is at six furlongs, and I can't think of one single good reason why that is the case, but I'm sure it's Hillary's fault.
6. The 6.5 furlong Turf Sprint formerly provided ample opportunities for punditry to collectively mention 12,024 times that it's the only track in North America with a right hand turn. Thanks a lot Woodbine. Talking point off.
7. Horse-based Twitter accounts really kick it into high gear during the Cup and that gets me excited. As impressive as many of these fine champions are, it's even more incredible that they can also turn on a computer, navigate their way to Twitter, and form coherent thoughts in English. On the surface it would seem difficult to do that, you know, because they're horses.
8. Interesting story lines abound: Who will win the deepest Distaff in history? How good is Arrogate? Can Tepin repeat? Will any of the Marathon horses finish?
9. Noholdingbackbear went 57:2 in a recent drill for the Breeders' Cup Sprint. No word on whether it was "around the dogs", but at that clip, there is no doubt he was chasing a mechanical bone.
10. Every workout has been essentially perfect and all the horses look great so use that bit of information as you see fit.

TVG to Air Breeders' Cup Undercard Races

There was a great deal of chatter on social media earlier this week that TVG would not be able to show undercard races on Friday and Saturday at Santa Anita due to a marketing agreement between the Breeders' Cup and TwinSpires, but on Wednesday afternoon that was changed, and TVG will be allowed to air those races, which include some graded events.

For more on this story, and a video from TVG about the situation, click here.

BCBC Offers Big Bucks & 15 Seats to NHC 18

Coinciding with the Breeders' Cup is the annual Breeders' Cup Betting Challenge, which is offering a $3 million bonus if the BCBC champion can go on and win the 18th annual National Handicapping Championship early next year. We'd like to wish good luck to all the players, especially HANA board member Charlie Davis.

More information on the BCBC and the bonus is available here.

Timeform U.K. Teams Up with Daily Racing Form

Ratings for European shippers, courtesy of Timeform U.K., will now appear in the Daily Racing Form after the two entities reached entered into a exclusive rights agreement.

Nigel Townsend, Chief Operating Officer of Timeform UK, said, "Timeform is delighted to become a part of the DRF stable. Timeform has been a long-standing advocate of the importance of international competition and cooperation within horse racing and we're delighted that DRF will provide North American horseplayers with all the information they need to enjoy the action."

NYRA Bets Adds California

The NYRA Bets advance deposit wagering service is available in California as of late October. NYRA Bets is now up to 26 states where it is available.

"NYRA Bets is rapidly expanding into some of the biggest markets in racing, and we're thrilled that California horseplayers now have access to the finest wagering platform available," said Tony Allevato, President of NYRA Bets and Executive Producer for NYRA TV. "We thank our loyal customers, and look forward to reaching new audiences in the coming months."

Keeneland Finishes Way Up

The recently-concluded fall meet at Keeneland showed large gains over the same meet last year.

According to a press release, "Total on-track wagering of $17,793,419 outpaced last fall's $15,813,986 by 12.5 percent. Average daily on-track handle rose 12.5 percent from $930,234 to $1,046,672.

"All-sources wagering on the Fall Meet, including wagering at Keeneland on imported simulcast signals, totaled $136,024,267, up 11 percent when compared to last fall's $122,469,056. Average daily all-sources handle of $8,001,427 also increased 11 percent versus $7,204,062 in the fall of 2015."

"The Fall Meet was simply spectacular," Keeneland President and CEO Bill Thomason said. "The world-class racing, idyllic weather and colorful fall landscape, wonderful food and fun-filled special events all combined to make this a very special race meet."

Breeders' Cup Q & A with...

Mike Dorr

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: Fortunately the Breeders' Cup mixes turf with dirt, so the bias only applies to half the races. Maybe more so than most years the most dominant runners are E and E/P types. The Classic appears to go through Chrome and Arrogate - normally, you might handicap for a speed duel falling apart but those are probably the two best anyway. The Distaff goes through Songbird, in my opinion, and she'll be near the lead. The Juvenile could fall apart like it did when Texas Red won, but needs several to press the pace.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: This will be a really competitive field and an interesting race. Normally, I say go with those with downhill experience, but I don't know if there's a Mizdirection in here. I'm interested in Celestine, who has been running great against a tough Turf Mile division and turns back from it. Her stamina could help in the longest Turf Sprint course in the Breeders' Cup rotation.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: I'll tell you on Friday - I have not too closely looked at this group yet.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: I have rarely thought that a horse didn't deserve his humans, but in the case of Runhappy I think this 100%. I understand the owner and trainer wants to do things their own way, styling themselves throwbacks to an era of better horsemanship, but their non-Runhappy record speaks for itself. The stand against Lasix is one thing, but it's another entirely to not adapt your training to the horse's needs. Runhappy should be the absolute best horse in the world, but he has regressed this year, and it's terribly disappointing.

Still, Runhappy could make things interesting for Dortmund on the front-end. Maybe he softens Baffert's charge up enough that you get a later runner up at the wire. The one I'm thinking of is Tom's Ready, who will be my play in the race.

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: Be still my heart, but Tepin. I think she's great but vulnerable at Santa Anita. Her last two races, while strong, have not (to me) seemed the Tepin of old. Miss Temple City has run some bang-up efforts and the Euro Limato seems like a special horse as well. She's likely to get bet to strong favoritism, probably even money, but I think the value is elsewhere in the race. Get her beat and the Pick-Xs will pay well.

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: I'm going to be honest - I don't have one this year. I'm not seeing that 12-1 or 15-1 ML horse that breaks out this year. I expect fantastic performances this year from horses that will be well-supported at the betting windows.

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: Arrogate. Baffert has been downplaying him versus Chrome and that just tells me he's stronger than ever. His Travers was other-worldly; Chrome has his hooves full.

Low Take, Full Fields

By Rich Halvey, Halvey on Horse Racing

Most discussions of how we can improve horse racing start with lowering take and having full fields.

Lowering take is a no brainer. Actually, that may be a poor turn of phrase since tracks that lower take seem to be few and far between. Apparently you do need more brains than we are witnessing. While the majority of horseplayers recognize that lowering take will increase handle, and ultimately profits, most tracks resist the idea. The well-known formula for gaming revenue is Gaming Revenue = Volume X House Advantage
Thus, if you want to make more money you have two choices. Increase the house advantage while keeping volume the same, or increase the volume. Unfortunately, increasing the house advantage (or raising the take) usually has the effect of decreasing the volume. The arithmetic is the same whether we are talking about horse racing, table games, or fantasy sports, and in the case of horse racing has been well documented. The more you take, the less you make. Unfortunately, the only people who don't know this are the legislature and the racing commission.

No sense in going through this again. I believe the horseplaying community is of one mind on lowering the take.

The full field discussion is a little more complicated. I totally agree that there are too many four-to-six horse fields, but would 12-to-14 horse fields in every race really be an advantage for most horseplayers? What exactly do people mean when they say they want more full fields, and why do they believe it would be an advantage for THEM? I suspect it would make the more exotic horizontals (Pick 4/5/6) completely out of reach for the average player (there would be over 7.5 million combinations in a Pick-6 with all 14-horse fields and a hardly more manageable three million combinations with six 12-horse fields) and make trifectas and superfectas substantially more difficult to hit. Why? As I noted in my article, Risk Intelligence, most players are poor at handicapping for positions other than win and as you move down from win, the chances of even the longest shot in the race increase. In other words, a horse with a five percent chance of winning may have closer to a 15 percent chance of finishing in one of the first four slots. In a 14-horse field, there are over 24,000 combinations in the superfecta, half that many in a 12-horse field. In a 10 horse field there are only a little over 5,000 superfecta combinations. Most people can only cover a small subset of the possible combinations, and given a series of 12 or 14 horse fields, it's more likely people will be discouraged and opt out of those pools. You can't make it too easy, but you can't make it too hard either.

Yes, it's likely the average payoffs will jump up with the larger fields, but it's small consolation if you are one of the majority of players without a ticket. Anyone who has tried to hit superfectas in the Breeders' Cup races knows exactly what I mean. Inevitably there is some 50-1 shot that finishes third and forces the overpay.

Frankly, I think the sweet spot for most races would be eight to ten starters, with most races closer to ten than eight. There is no reason to expect that a guy who goes to the track with $100 will suddenly start going to the track with $200 to cover more combinations. Eight to ten starters still gives the average player a fighting chance to hit horizontals and verticals.

Beyond that, I think the number of starters should be limited to ten per race (except stakes) because I believe that will increase churn. Slightly smaller payoffs, but more wins for the average player. The key question is, will larger payoffs attract more players when they are less likely to hit them, or will more frequent, but smaller collections have a greater impact on attracting players and increasing handle? Racing has been trying to compete with the lottery for decades, not understanding that their solid customer would be more likely to be loyal if he was winning more than occasionally. The game is better if it appears beatable with the right amount of skill. Ten starters is the best compromise between looking for big payoffs and making the game hittable enough to keep people churning.

I believe the problem is too many short fields, not too few full fields, if that makes sense. If you want to get into most of the horizontal and vertical fields you should be arguing to get rid of races (except stakes I suppose) with less than eight starters. And at 10 starters tracks may be able to more often split entries into two races instead of having 14 starters and six also-eligibles.

I'd be interested in counter arguments regarding why 12-14 horse fields would be better for racing.

Rich Halvey's Breeders' Cup Q & A

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: I'll watch the early races on both days to see how the track is playing, but I expect the track superintendent will do his best to provide a fair running surface. There are only a couple of races where I might adjust - specifically the dirt mile and the dirt sprint - but for the most part I'll be focusing on finding the value horses in each race.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: For as long as I've been handicapping Santa Anita, horses that have done well on the turf sprint course always have an advantage, but in this race they better be highly-talented as well. Generally, I look for horses with useful speed breaking from the middle to the outside of the field, since I believe that gives them the biggest advantage on the course. That ups consideration of Ambitious Brew and Holy Lute and I'll certainly be using them in my verticals. The other runners that I'll be paying attention to are Obviously, A Lot, and Celestine. You have to demand odds in this race.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: 2-year-olds can be difficult to handicap because they can develop and improve so quickly between races, but they generally give an honest effort. I give a lot of value to the trainer (good record with juveniles and turf runners, and that means Chad Brown, Mark Cause, and Aidan O'Brien), and horses with experience around two turns. I'm also generally biased against the West Coast turf juveniles since I don't think they are tested against the top competition. Like many of the Breeders' Cup turf races, the Euros have done well in this one, but I focus on horses that look they could be on the "A" List in Europe as 3-year-olds. Oscar Performance has done nothing wrong and should be up front early, but he doesn't seem to be getting the accolades you expect a horse with two daylight wins to be getting. I'll be looking at Intelligence Cross from the Euro shippers, Keep Quiet, Good Samaritan, and Ticonderoga from North America, and I'll probably slip the local star Big Score on a ticket or two.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: The question is what is Dortmund going to do with Runhappy? Runhappy is a fast horse and there seems to be little doubt he'll be the one winging on the lead. Can he negotiate the mile? He's had two chances and failed both times, but his effort in the Ack Ack after being off nine months seemed to indicate he'll be cycling to his top in the Breeders' Cup. Of course, you may not be likely to get a lot more than his ML odds of 3-1, and given the question marks - and the fact Dortmund loves Santa Anita and the distance - he isn't likely to be a juicy win bet.

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: Two years ago I was walking around Santa Anita telling anyone who would listen that the easiest winner of the weekend was going to be Lady Eli. Since then she's beaten Laminitis, and come back to win the Flower Bowl in preparation for this. If I have only one winner in this year's Breeders' Cup, I hope it is Lady Eli.

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: While she may only be a tepid favorite, I think Tepin is up against some really tough competition in the Breeders' Cup Mile. There are five Euros in the race, two trained by Aidan O'Brien, including the talented Alice Springs. As well as the good American runners Photo Call (who beat Tepin last out) and Ironicus. Lots of potential for a price here.

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: Chrome and Arrogate certainly look obvious in the Classic, and try as I might; I'm not coming up with a good alternative. While I'm on record as never having been on the CC bandwagon (he should not have been Horse of the Year two years ago), this race is his to lose. This race has seen more than its share of upsets, but I'm not sure this is going to be one of those years.

Racing Commentary

The Fundamentals of Wagering Apply, No Matter Where You Are

By Dean Towers

For some time now I have heard from many inside horse racing that 'we wish we were like racing in France.' France, of course, has a near-monopoly on pari-mutuel betting, which probably makes an argument about how we wish we were them moot. But even if US racing were a pure monopoly with many more protections, the sport would still have to abide by the laws of wagering. Why? Because sooner or later, being a monopoly is really no different than being any other perfectly-competitive business: When there are product substitutes, and the monopoly does not use its edge to take advantage of its position, it's sub-optimal, and it can break down.

Breaking down is what we've seen for a few cycles now in France. The pari-mutuel urban, ("PMU") has been losing revenue and market share, as mentioned in "Where Does France Go From Here", at Thoroughbred Commentary.

The 'solutions' to France's problems offered in the article – bigger field size, cutting overhead, more marketing money - all seem fine, but they miss one main point, and it's the elephant in the room.

Back in 2010, the French government imposed a new law (2010-476) which did two things. It taxed horse racing turnover at 7.4% and also prohibited horse racing from offering any bet below 15% takeout.

The PMU, last season, took 26.3 cents out of every dollar bet. This is the lowest payout rate in any major racing jurisdiction in the world, on average.

Interestingly enough, even quasi-monopolies, or duopolies around the racing world take a different approach. Hong Kong's hold on wagers last year was about 16.1%, Australia's, with the opening up of the fixed odds betting market, came in at 10.4% (Source: International Federation of Racing, 2015 Fact Book).

Both of these jurisdictions are growing, even in the face of new competition; Australia's Thoroughbred turnover has grown from about AUS$9.5B in 2000 to AUS$16B in 2015, Hong Kong's handle has about doubled since 2007.

Monopolies are wonderful things (certainly if you are one), but sooner or later the $2 per minute long distances charges are simply a pipe-dream, as times change. If your business is not demand-led, guided by solid metrics like price and value, you're in serious trouble. The world is too big, too connected, and there are too many other things for people to spend their discretionary gambling income on. It appears in France that's exactly what's been happening, monopoly or no monopoly, and US racing can learn a thing or two from them.

Breeders' Cup Q & A with...

Jerod Dinkin

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: Preconceived notions of how the track might play is somewhat dangerous so I take an open mind. Paying close attention to racing leading up to the Cup, especially the week of, is most prudent. I like to see if any clear patterns emerge during the "undercard" races.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: It looks like a wide-open race, and I am completely against both Pure Sensation (difficult post) and Mongolian Saturday (not effective at distances greater than 5 1/2 furlongs). Experience down the hill is certainly a plus given the unique nature of that distance and surface and success of past winners California Flag, Mizdirection (2x), and Desert Code.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: A Euro to be named later

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: Tossing (like an old mattress)

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: Flintshire with an honorable mention for Tepin

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: Limato

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: Chrome

I Can't Wait...

By Jonathan Stettin, Past The Wire

I have often said there is no bigger advantage in horse racing than knowing a short priced horse that won't win. With the wagering menus and platforms we have today, we are somewhat limited in the way we can capitalize on those scenarios. One of the worst beats to me is when you use three or four horses in a multi-race bet, you leave out the favorite who doesn't win, and none of the horses you used to beat him come in. That really stings. How can you be so right and so wrong at the same time?

With our wagering structure in the US today, even if you know a horse will not win, you can't capitalize on it unless you know who will win. It doesn't have to be that way and at many other venues throughout the world it isn't. This is a time when racing needs to be attracting new players and increasing handle. Part of doing that is increasing wagering menus to include new and innovative bets that give players a chance to use their skills and win.

Personally I can't wait for exchange wagering to come to the US. It can't be soon enough as far as I am concerned. Not only does it create additional betting opportunities but it allows you to become your very own private little casino or book. For a sharp player this can be tremendously profitable. With exchange wagering you can offer odds on a horse to lose. For example two recent Kentucky Derby prospects I was strongly against, were Hansen and Verrazano. I did not think either one could win the Derby. I went as far as to say I knew neither could win it. Both horses took their fair share of support at the windows which I looked at as money being thrown away. Exchange wagering would have allowed me to scoop it up without requiring me to know who the winner would be.

They weren't the only ones either. There have been enough to make some serious money. Game on Dude in The Breeders' Cup Classic one year comes to mind when he was the favorite. Inglorious in the 2011 Alabama was another. I went back about five years in major races and found fourteen horses I would have laid considerable money on losing. Only one would have got me, Union Rags in The Belmont. I can make those numbers work.

Let's say the odds on a horse are 3-1 that you feel won't win. You can go on your exchange wagering site such as Betfair and offer 7-2 or 4-1. You have to have the money to support paying off the bets you accept if the horse should win, but that is a good thing, as it eliminates the sole reason one might not want to wager with you. You can set the odds as you see fit and accept whatever wagers you can support. Every year there will be five or so kill opportunities in this arena. The Kentucky Derby will usually provide one of them. This is a high risk high stakes game that isn't for everybody but it will bring some of the whales we have lost recently back into the fray. I'll do north of $500k the first year and more after. I can't wait.

On those occasions where you do feel confident about the winner but are not in love with the price, you can always shop the exchange for someone who thinks they are smarter than you and is willing to lay some more attractive odds. Think of the possibilities and competition. This can give the poker craze a run for its money.

Exchange wagering also allows wagering on races already in progress. Sounds easy, doesn't it? Try picking your horses at the top of the stretch for a week or two and let me know how much your win percentage goes up. While I will be passing on that aspect of it I will embrace laying and backing as they say in the trade. I hope it happens. The racing game is often reactive as opposed to proactive. There is so much more we can do with technology that can improve the game and the whole experience. I recently read about a video system that hopefully will be in all tracks sooner than later. This system allows the player to choose the view they want to watch on their monitor. They can watch the pan shot, a head on view, and even an isolated view on the horse they select. That is a phenomenal system that will not only improve the experience but help with trip handicapping. It will have a pause and rewind so you can make your notes right there and review steward decisions at your pace. Of course slow motion and freeze frame will be available. We should be at the forefront of this type of technology. This is The Sport of Kings, let's act like it.

Jonathan's Breeders' Cup Q & A

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: I always watch the early races and adjust accordingly. I think Santa Anita will do and try to do a good job having the track play honestly.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: Experience is definitely a key. I like horses who have won down the hill, like Santa Anita, and ones that are cutting back from a mile or mile and an eighth.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: Late decision on that. Draw and pace are factors for me.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: Have to take a stand against off last race, especially if he draws outside.

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: That's the million dollar question that I don't even know the answer to yet.

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: Odds will determine that, the longer the more exciting; there will be more than a few live exciting long shots

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: Arrogate would be my top choice

Jonathan says that Arrogate (outside) is his choice in the Breeders' Cup Classic - Eclipse Sportswire / Breeders' Cup Photos ©

Below this is a photograph of a horse race in progress. At the bottom, there is a blue box with white text that reads: "Turf's Up at Laurel Park! Racing through Dec. 31 Friday through Sunday Post Time 12:30pm".

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: While I certainly believe biased racetracks exist, I am much more apt than other handicappers to ascribe race results to the horses themselves rather than environmental factors. This is especially true in places like California where the weather is relatively placid the majority of the time and track conditions change little.

That said, we are all well aware of the speedy nature of the Santa Anita main track on Breeders' Cup Friday 2014. There was so much consternation after the results that day that track maintenance took extra precaution throughout the evening to loosen up the track in the hopes of making it more "fair". Ultimately, there were horses winning from a variety of running positions on Breeders' Cup Saturday but whether that was the result of the "bias" being worked out of the track or just the right horses coming with their best performances is in the eye of the beholder.

Personally, I'll be on the lookout to see if there are any trends occurring such as speed collapsing even with slow paces or the inability of class horses to close into fast fractions early in the card but will not let such circumstances override my handicapping and will still look to lean on the horses I know are best. Furthermore, if an occurrence like 2014 happens where the results on Friday seem to be tilted towards one run style versus another, do not automatically assume that the same trends (if they even existed at all) will be applicable to Saturday's races as well.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: Turf sprints in general make me a little nervous because they often seem more like rodeo events than Thoroughbred races. But if these types of races are now a permanent part of the Breeders' Cup program, I will readily admit no one does them better than Santa Anita.

It has been shown equivocally that once a horse has displayed affinity for the 6 1/2 furlongs "down the hill" configuration, you must respect it every time it runs back in those niche turf events even if it seems outclassed or too slow. The fact that four of the five winners of the Breeders' Cup Turf Sprint at Santa Anita were horses who had displayed particular affinity for the course and distance further underscores the importance of paying particular attention when handicapping to locals with success "down the hill".

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: I happen to like the Juvenile Turf this year quite a bit because I think some of our American horses will be overbet while some of the better Euros appear to have muddled form. When in doubt in this race, just go with Ryan Moore and Frankie Dettori as they have won five of the nine runnings of this race between them.

One interesting horse who will be a price in here is FAVORABLE OUTCOME, who drew well and showed considerable talent when winning first out on dirt at Saratoga. Trainer Chad Brown re-routed the Flatter colt to this grassy affair after watching him outwork the fairly highly regarded Ticonderoga who likewise starts in the Juvenile Turf.

To have success in this race my suggestion would be to watch as many European race replays you can find as well as read the Timeform comments on the foreigners and deduce from there if they hold more upside than the American contingent. Often that answer is yes.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: I was at Runhappy's final work before the Ack Ack as well as that race itself and from my perspective the colt looked ready to roll. Needless to say I was highly disappointed in his effort at Churchill Downs that day as he looked quite well going in and his speed was as strong as ever.

Due to that misstep and seeing the curious way the colt has trained out of that race makes me extremely dubious he can beat a G1 field going two-turns in the Breeders' Cup Dirt Mile. His worst race ever was a two-turn catastrophe down at Fairgrounds early in his 3-year-old season, and I have no real expectation that he will perform better this time with the type of crowd and class of animal he will be facing in a few days at Santa Anita.

The horse has abundant talent, and I do hope that he gets to strut his stuff again sooner rather than later, but unfortunately I do not think that day will come this Breeders' Cup Friday.

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: Rather than trying to beat any one favorite, my strategy for this 2016 Breeders' Cup is for the most part to fade Baffert horses. Not because I don't think they can win—a few of them can—but because none of them will offer any value. Pitching them on top of verticals is going to be my primary mode of attack because I am certain they will all be underlaid in those pools as well as in the WPS. Noted and Quoted is the horse of his I'd most consider using in various bets mostly because the Juvenile Fillies is relatively inscrutable to me and this filly probably won't go favored.

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: Highland Reel is the horse I'm most looking forward to betting.

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: Chrome. If racehorses were investments, Chrome would be a Treasury Bill (reliable performance and low risk) while Arrogate would be an IPO on a Silicon Valley start-up (risky with unknown potential).

Recapping the Derby Wars $250k Game

On October 8-9, DerbyWars hosted its first-ever $250,000 game, the largest online handicapping contest ever held. At the end of 27 races, David Spielman (dspiel80) of Chicago triumphed over 129 other entries with a score of $220.80 to take home the $80,000 first prize, with Jon Hurd (@nolagistics) of Little Rock, Arkansas, cashing for $40,000 in second with $199.70 and Scott Galica (watha34) of Racine, Wisconsin, in third, collecting $24,000. Dylan Donnelly (rookie07) came in fourth with $166.40, earning $15,000, and day one leader John Nichols (kynick) of Louisville finished fifth with $166.00 worth $10,000, and track announcer Vic Stauffer's (goofontheroof) sixth-place finish was worth $9,000 with a score of $149.80.

David Spielman

Spielman has had experience in DerbyWars $100K games before, but this was his biggest contest win. When he's not winning big games, he works as a credit analyst at a community bank a short drive from Arlington Park.

David Spielman:

This was by far my biggest win. Next biggest was actually about six weeks ago when I came in third in the August $100k game. Before that, I was in first after 11 of 15 races in the April 2015 100k game. The winner scored as much in the last four races as I had in the first 11, and I finished ninth.

The game went down to the wire with four of the top five finishers picked 5-1 Mr. Roary in the last contest race and watched him hold on by a neck!

How did the Top Three Qualify?

Spielman won his $250K entry by finishing third in the August $100K game, but Jon Hurd and Scott Galica were able to qualify for such big wins for only $35.

Preparation and Strategy

David Spielman:

- As is the case with any game, I felt calm and cautiously optimistic going into it but there were definitely some nerves as well. Finishing third in the $100k game was a great confidence boost but Keeneland has always been a bit of a mystery to me and for whatever reason, to use a baseball analogy, I've never seen the ball as well at Belmont and Santa Anita as I do at Saratoga and Del Mar. As far as strategy, I just set a goal of trying to cash in every race and try to take advantage of what little control I have over the situation.

- I can only speak for myself, but I've learned that handicapping in advance, even if it's just the night before, is crucial. It's so much easier to look at each race in a vacuum when my mind is relaxed and I'm not worried about my position on the leaderboard. It seems impossible to win without a healthy mix of favorites and long shots but I don't consciously seek out a certain number of either.

- After taking the time to handicap in advance, I have to constantly remind myself to trust my picks. I was in first going into the 13th race of the Travers game and switched off the eventual winner (who paid $43.40) because I thought the fact that the horse I switched to had taken money made him a "safe" pick. Like I said, that third-place finish was my biggest win to that point and I'm grateful it happened, but that was a $7,000 mistake. I did make several last-second changes in this contest (I think I counted six or seven) and the net effect was positive, but it was less than my margin of victory. I feel very lucky about that considering my past experiences.

Coming Down The Stretch

Coming into the last four races, David Spielman held a commanding lead, but nearly half the field was in striking position to cash in the tournament.

At The Finish

Going into the last race, Spielman had a $21 lead, but was carefully watching the odds on the #9 horse which was 5-1.

"Figuring that a 5-1 winner would pay around $17, I switched from the #9 to the #1, then back to the #9 and was trying to switch back to the #1 but ran out of time," said Spielman. "It turned out I still would have won by $1.10, but waiting for that to go official would have been the most excruciating two minutes of my life."

Overall, it was a fantastic tournament and we look forward to more great tournaments in the future! The comments in the chat by fellow players summed it up pretty well!

Breeders' Cup Q & A with...

Craig Johnson

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: As a gambler, I'm looking for an extreme bias that may determine who I bet on, or how much. A minor bias is sometimes difficult to judge in real-time. I'm expecting a surface that is fair and feel with the advent of social media; tracks will monitor any perceived bias reports in real time and water accordingly if needed. Some horses do better on a faster surface, and local animals do have a slight advantage going into the Breeders' Cup which will have me giving a second look to all the California-based runners for the second- and third-place finish positions.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: I think experience does help down the hill and if all things are equal, I would prefer a horse with downhill turf experience. I do want contenders with closing ability on the turf sprint and think the race is very much a race flow question. The horse who moves "last" will most likely win, I will take a second look on the local Santa Anita jockeys who have been down the course as having an edge because they can time the race flow. Over the years some of the foreign riders have struggled with the faster pace of the turf sprint and given their horses too much to do late. Pure Sensation drew the rail and looked fresh and fit. Green Mask is an also-eligible who has upside at a price.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: I think Favorable Outcome is very live in this spot. He has turf breeding and Chad Brown has done well in this race and has scored with turf horses. The Champagne featured a quick pace and fast final time. Favorable Outcome chased that fast pace and had a visually impressive race on the dirt with a strong closing kick in his debut. I believe this horse wants to cover and will come with a big run. He is live for a top-three finish despite not having proven turf form. I like the Americans best in this race with Good Samaritan, another top contender.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: This horse could improve and may be the key to the race. I feel Runhappy is a one-dimensional speedball and could be the key to softening up Dortmund. Runhappy is very talented but gives the impression that he is more a power sprinter in addition several foot issues makes me leery of him as a potential key horse. Too many question marks and too low of a price for me to single. My top choice is Gun Runner, who can sit third or fourth and make a move into the tiring speed. Gun Runner has the class and like the cut back to one-mile distance and has two wins at 8 1/2 furlongs.

Gun Runner - Eclipse Sportswire / Breeders' Cup Photos ©

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: I'm taking a stand against Tepin. I feel she caught the field napping last year and opened up by four lengths on the turn. This year she is a target and all eyes will be on her early and often. This year she faces other proven speed, won't be on her home turf and will have to run faster than she has this year to replicate last year's race. She is slower on all the speed figures coming into this race and visually has not caught my eye as she did last year. The overseas trip and extended Saratoga vacation may have dulled the speed. I think she is very vulnerable on a firm Santa Anita turf course.

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: I'm looking forward to Masochistic. I believe his is the speed of the speed and is one of the fastest horses I have seen in the last 15 years. I like the cutback from seven furlongs to six furlongs and feel he can take this field gate to wire. Last year he was clearly off form going into the Breeders' Cup Sprint. He has the class, and the speed, and I like the fact he has been working well and very much in control. The pace may be slower than expected and Masochistic will get position on the outside and look to open up going into the turn. I feel the other three speeds may take back a little in this race. Masochistic with a two-length lead coming into the stretch could be very dangerous. I like placing a bet on a speed horse controlling the pace he either goes wire to wire or fades late, but I don't envision any trip trouble.

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: Chrome has the best resume on his home track who has not missed a workout all year. He has had a solid campaign of six races and has pointed to a select series of races that should have him prepared for a peak effort. He does face other speed in the race, still not sold on him being a 10-furlong horse. California Chrome is the horse to beat. Straight Exacta Chrome over Frosted and Hoppertunity.

Why We Lose

By Vin Rogers

I wrote a piece in a recent issue of Horseplayer Monthly titled "Handicapping – The Theory of Everything". It focused on Kerry Thomas' research on handicapping problems caused by horses' herding instinct, i.e., "a horse seeks the comfort of movement with another horse; some horses prefer to "buddy up;" stay close to others – they feel safer this way. Clearly, this equine characteristic causes trouble for handicappers; no handicapping tool I know of factors this idiosyncrasy into its analysis.

I want now, however, to expand on that piece; to discuss a number of other equine characteristics that sometime get in the way of our most thorough handicapping efforts.

Horseplayers have lengthy lists of explanations for losing wagers; lousy ride by jock, track playing too fast (or slow), pace too fast (or slow), Trainer X is a "lab trainer" – you've heard them all and more; and any or all may be valid explanations for our handicapping failures some of the time. But we've only touched the tip of the handicapping iceberg!

I've written (in Horseplayer Monthly "I'm About Even") of my experience as a thoroughbred owner; but I've never discussed my time as horseman, rider, and owner of four saddle horses (one, an off-the-track Thoroughbred) during my two decades as a competitive hunter-jumper rider.

During those wonderful years, I learned of course to ride – but more importantly, I learned horses!

I did my share of stall mucking, feet picking, grooming, braiding manes and tails, and tidying up after a Niagara-like piss from Joey or Benny (barn names). I should add that there was a lot of hugging and petting going on, as well as mostly inane one-way conversations.

But graduation day came when my trainer told me it was time to learn to clean Joey's sheath.

Smegma – a collection of dirt and excretions – builds up inside a male horse's sheath. It must be removed periodically for the horse's health. This entails lubrication, then sliding your hand inside and up the sheath and carefully, gently removing the smegma.

It was tough – but I did it. Probably among the proudest moments of my life. I knew I had arrived; I could now call myself a horseman!

The horse is a complex, often bewildering, erratic, sensitive and wary creature. It sees both forward and backward; hears sounds a mile away, feels vibrations in the ground it stands on. It loves the familiar and dreads the unknown.

The next time you view a race – either on TV or at the track – watch carefully as the field – any field – experienced runners or maidens – approaches the starting gate. Remember; they've been there many times in both their schooling and/or racing experience. Yet one backs away; another plants its feet firmly in the ground and must be pushed and pulled into its stall by a locked-arms horse-savvy gate crew.

Once in the stall, some find reasons to object to their confinement; they wiggle and squirm enough to cause the jock to dismount. Again, they've been in the gate many times – it's not a new experience. Yet, from a given horse's point of view on a particular day, all may not be well.

So – why does this happen?

Perhaps on race day a new groom showed up at 5:00 a.m.; rare, but it happens. A strange face, an odd sound, a new smell – for some horses, a troubling experience; for others, all in a day's work.

Similarly, the voices, smell, and especially the touch of a given gate crew member may be perceived as threatening by some horses; for others, a nearby spectator in a too-bright (for that horse) red sweater distracts, as may unexpected and unusual shadows gathering as the field loads for the afternoon's late races.

Once the race has begun, a dirt (or turf) track that looks like any other – indeed, a surface the horse has run on before – somehow feels different today. To a horse, all jocks are not equal and it may respond positively or negatively to each riders' idiosyncrasies.

(And – sometimes – really – on a given day and just like you – they simply wake up feeling crappy!)

These acute senses and sensitivities, of course, explain both their evolvment and survival during their centuries of existence on this planet.

A few weeks ago, I saw a horse unseat its rider early in a race at Belmont. His ears went up rather than down, and he quickly ran through the field, took the lead, and kept it to the finish.

Some horses do appear more ready to run on any given day than others. They are focused, less distracted, and appear to welcome the competitive experience; and they do so consistently. For me, that is the ultimate definition of that ephemeral term, "class". Some horses have it, many don't. Identifying those runners may be the key to success or failure at our game.

So – before a race is run, your analysis seems valid; all or most of the pieces fit – speed, class, pace, connections...but your horse finishes up the track! Your berate yourself; what did I miss, where did I go wrong?

To paraphrase Cassius in Julius Caesar, "The fault, dear horseplayer, lies not in our stars, but in the horse's head..."

Losses are not always our analytical fault. What happens on a given day – from the time a horse awakens, feeds, is groomed, defecates, urinates, hears, smells, sees and feels – any or all may affect today's performance. No handicapping tool – not Brisnet, DRF, Thorograph, Predictaform, the Sheets – can factor the horse's nature into its predictions.

Having said all of this, it's amazing that we sometimes – perhaps enough of the time – get it right! Some days, all of the pieces do fit, and of course, that's what keeps us in the game.

Breeders' Cup Q & A with...

Mike Adams

Q: The Breeders' Cup at Santa Anita has been somewhat notorious for speed biases – are you expecting the same thing this year and how do you adjust your handicapping?

A: I'm going to watch the early races and adjust if there appears to be any speed bias. The undercard on Friday has some early races with multiple speed horses so we should be able to get a read on the track pretty early.

Q: The Turf Sprint at Santa Anita is unique to the event with them racing down the hill – what are your thoughts on that race? Is experience down the hill a key?

A: I think that experience on the downhill course is less important than the distance of the race being 6 1/2 furlongs. There are lots of horses in this race that excel at five or 5 1/2 furlongs. I think the downhill course is ideal for seven furlong – one-mile type horses. Also this year I think the quality of the European sprinters is higher than I have seen so it will be interesting to see if they excel.

Q: The Juvenile Turf looks wide-open as always, who are you going with?

A: My attitude with Breeders' Cup Turf races has always been to favor the European runners unless there is a standout US runner. I think Lancaster Bomber will really benefit from adding Lasix and getting on firm turf, and I think he will be a square price with Ryan Moore riding the other stable entry. I have always been a fan of Seamie Heffernan and I like the inside draw.

Q: What do you do with Runhappy in the Dirt Mile?

A: I will be playing against him unless the track is super speed favoring. I don't think he will be as effective going two turns, and there are others in that race, particularly Gun Runner, who should excel at that distance

Q: Who is the favorite you're taking a stand against?

A: These races are so competitive, so I am always wary of backing low priced horses. I think the turf races in particular offer lots of value and I think Lady Eli is going to be overbet in the Filly & Mare Turf. She is a special horse, but she is going to have a very hard time giving four pounds up to Seventh Heaven.

Q: Who is the horse you're most excited to bet?

A: Dancing Rags in the Juvenile Fillies. Graham Motion has done a wonderful job with her and I think she is just ultra-talented. She should get a perfect stalking trip and I think she will be a square price too.

Q: Classic: Chrome, Arrogate, or someone else?

A: Those two are the most likely winners based on their most recent efforts but from a betting perspective, I will have to have a few bucks on Shaman Ghost. He has been very good to me this summer and I have a feeling that he is better than his PP's show. I think he will stalk an honest pace and if the top two falter he will be there to upset at a big price.

Breeders Crown Recap

By Greg Reinhart

The championship night of harness racing, the Breeders Crown, was held last Friday and Saturday at the Meadowlands. The four open races for older horses were staged on Friday, and then the 2- and 3-year-olds took to the track on Saturday for eight more finals.

I thought the event was quite good this year, although pretty chalky. On Friday night, Hannelore Hanover bounced back from a break in the $1 million International Trot in her first try over a half-mile track at Yonkers to beat an Open Mare Trot field that included Bee A Magician, who went over $4 million in earnings with a second-place finish.

The Open Pace, which was billed as a showdown between Wiggle It Jiggleit and Always B Miki, absolutely lived up to the hype and then some, with Always B Miki wearing down Wiggle It Jiggleit from first-over in the final quarter, winning in 1:49 on a cold and windy night. Always B Miki, who subsequently took over the #1 position in the harness racing top ten poll, only has one start remaining in his racing career, the TVG final at the Meadowlands next Saturday (November 12), and Wiggle It Jiggleit is expected to compete in that event as well.

The lone upset on Friday night came in the Open Trot (heavy favorite Lady Shadow easily won the Open Mare Pace), where Resolve was not quite up to the level he displayed all year and got beat out in the stretch by a rallying Flanagan Memory and driver Brian Sears.

On Saturday night, we saw several horses likely lock up divisional honors, but also a couple of surprises.

In the 2-Year-Old Filly Trot, trainer Jimmy Takter made several equipment changes to Ariana G after she had been a bit too hot in her elimination and wound up getting beat by Chezatter, and they paid off as she came off third-over cover and won in 1:53.4. In the companion race for males, all eyes were on world champion Walner, and he did not disappoint, trotting away with authority through the stretch to win by 4 1/2 lengths in 1:53 flat. Walner will be back in action this Saturday as he headlines the Kindergarten Classic finals at the Meadowlands.

The 2-Year-Old Colt Pace had been much ballyhooed in the press before the race as a showdown between Somebeachsomewhere colts Huntsville and Downbytheseaside, and the anticipated battle materialized in the stretch when driver David Miller angled out of the pocket with Downbytheseaside to take his shot at Huntsville. The latter horse was better on this night, though, as he paced away inside the final eighth to win in 1:49.1, just missing the world record that Huntsville and Downbytheseaside had tied earlier in the month at the Grand Circuit Meet at The Red Mile.

The 2-Year-Old Filly Pace saw a first-time Breeders Crown winning driver in Marcus Miller as he guided his father Erv's Someomensomewhere to a narrow decision over Agent Q and David Miller. It was easily one of the best races of the weekend with the top two rallying through the stretch, ending up separated by a scant nose, and third-place finisher Idyllic Beach less than a length back in third. Adding to the intrigue was the lengthy look at the photo the judges took, raising the possibility that we were going to see the first dead-heat in the history of the Breeders Crown.

On the 3-year-old side, Racing Hill rebounded from a flat elimination effort, rallying by battling leaders Check Six and Lyons Snyder turning for home and holding on over Manhattan Beach late to take the Colt Pace in 1:48 flat. Racing Hill has enjoyed an excellent season, with this victory joining triumphs in the Adios, Messenger, Hempt, and Tattersalls, and he will merit consideration for year-end honors in the United States.

The 3-Year-Old Filly Pace saw Call Me Queen Be upend big names Pure Country, Darlinonthebeach, and L A Delight in 1:49.4. She was the first Breeders Crown winner for both driver Scott Zeron and trainer Ross Croghan.

Bar Hopping continued a solid season with a strong victory in the 3-Year-Old Colt Trot, taking advantage of Southwind Frank lacking room in the lane to win by a length and a half in 1:51.4. The surprise in that event was that Trotting Triple Crown winner Marion Marauder turned up sick and was clearly not himself, finishing tenth and last.

The 3-Year-Old Filly Trot went to Kentucky Filly Futurity champion Broadway Donna, as she trotted by Hambletonian Oaks champion All The Time from first-over in the stretch and went on to win convincingly. That should wrap up year-end honors for Broadway Donna, who was also the Dan Patch Award winner in the division last year.
